9. PARENTAL RELOCATION (MOVING WITH THE CHILDREN).

A. Notice Requirement

If the person with whom the children are scheduled to reside a majority of their time plans to move, that person shall give notice to every person who has Court-ordered time with the children. If information is protected under a Court order, it may be withheld from the notice. A relocating person may ask the Court to waive any notice requirements that may put the health and safety of a person or child at risk. Failure to give the required notice may be grounds for sanctions, including contempt.

The notice of an intended relocation of the children must be given by personal service or any form of mail requiring a return receipt:

- (1) no less than 60 days before the date of the intended relocation of the child; or
- (2) no more than five days after the date that the person knows the information required to be in the notice (described below) if the person did not know and could not reasonably have known the information in sufficient time to provide the 60 days' notice, and it is not reasonable to delay the relocation.

The notice of intended relocation of the children must include:

- An address at which service of process may be accomplished during the period for objection;
- A brief statement of the specific reasons for the intended relocation of the child; and
- A notice to the nonrelocating person that an objection may be filed. The notice shall contain the following statement:

The relocation of the child will be permitted and the proposed revised residential schedule may be confirmed unless, within 30 days, you file a petition and motion with the court to block the relocation or object to the proposed revised residential schedule and serve the petition and motion on the person proposing relocation and all other persons entitled by court order to residential time or visitation with the children.

The notice of intended relocation of the children shall also include the following, if available:

- The specific street address of the intended new residence, if known, or as much of the intended address as is known, such as city and state;
- The new mailing address, if different from the intended new residence address;
- The new home telephone number;
- The name and address of the child's new school and day care facility, if applicable;
- The date of the intended relocation of the child; and
- A proposal in the form of a proposed parenting plan for a revised schedule of residential time or visitation with the children, if any.

A person required to give notice of an intended relocation of the children has a continuing duty to promptly update the information required with the notice as that new information becomes known.

Warning! If you do not notify...

The Court may grant a temporary order restraining relocation of the children (or ordering return of the children if the children's relocation has occurred) if the Court finds:

- The required notice of an intended relocation of the child was not provided in a timely manner and the nonrelocating party was substantially prejudiced;
- The relocation of the child has occurred without agreement of the parties, court order, or the notice required; or
- After examining evidence presented at a hearing for temporary orders in which the parties had adequate opportunity to prepare and be heard, there is a likelihood that on final hearing the Court will not approve the intended relocation of the child or no circumstances exist sufficient to warrant a relocation of the child prior to a final determination at trial.

B. Right to Object

A person entitled to time with the children under a Court order can file an objection to the children's relocation whether or not he or she received proper notice. The objection must be served on all persons entitled to time with the children. The relocating person shall not move the children during the time for objection unless: (a) the delayed notice provisions apply; or (b) a Court order allows the move.

Except for good cause shown, if a person entitled to object to the relocation of the child does not file an objection with the Court within 30 days after receipt of the relocation notice, then the relocation of the children may be permitted. A nonobjecting person may be entitled to the residential time or visitation with the children specified in the proposed residential schedule included with the relocation notice. Any person entitled to residential time or visitation with a child under a court order retains his or her right to move for modification.

C. Move within Same School District

When the intended relocation of the children is within the school district in which the children currently reside the majority of the time, the person intending to relocate the children may provide actual notice by any reasonable means to every other person entitled to residential time or visitation with the children under a court order.

A person who is entitled to residential time or visitation with the children under a court order may not object to the intended relocation of the children within the school district in which the children currently reside the majority of the time, but he or she retains the right to move for modification.

(This is a summary of the law regarding relocation. The complete law is in TTC 4.20.430.)

RESIDENTIAL SCHEDULE

(The Residential Schedule (Sections 10-15) must set forth where the children shall reside each day of the year (including provisions for holidays, birthdays of family members, vacations, and other special occasion) and what contact the children shall have with each parent. Parents are encouraged to create a Residential Schedule that meets the developmental needs of the children and individual needs of their family.)
